

SAID IN CYPRESS

by Dale

For once, I made a mistake that I'm sure wasn't mine. Last week I went to the mountains and didn't get to read proof. One article I wrote ended up by saying that Jim Schmidt was opening a new lumber yard. That may be correct, but there is no Jim Schmidt in Cypress opening a new lumber yard, as far as I know.

Jim SCHMITT is building a new drive-in restaurant on his place west of the school which he will lease—and another man is opening a lumber company east of town. The latter isn't quite ready to operate yet, so I will wait until later for the full details.

As you will no doubt see in Henry's column about births, Barbara Frazier (nee Barbara Williams) had twins last week. She missed the boat though. If she had waited until September 23, she would have received a new Westinghouse laundromat and Westinghouse dryer free. That company is giving the washer-dryer combination to every set of twins born in the U. S., Alaska and Hawaii on that day, according to the Cypress Hardware, who by coincidence, sells them.

When I was selling a case of book matches to the Cypress cafe Tuesday, the unmistakable odor of fresh paint was evident. Found out Kenny and Ray are giving the cafe a new paint job inside and a good, over-all cleaning.

A nasty rumor has somehow got started that John Crume, of John's Shoe Repair, is going out of business. That is NOT TRUE, John says, partly because he has no intention of doing so, and partly because he just signed a new lease.

A couple of people were heard to remark that there would be no barbecue at White Gold Day this year. There will definitely be one—and you can prove it to yourself by buying a ticket from one of the Queen candidates when she asks you.

Many folks who have had a smattering of first aid training seems to think there is only one way to handle an accident case.

Billy Jim Noe's accident last week was an example of what I mean. It seems that Billy Jim's brother, Gene, took charge of his little brother and prepared him for a trip to the hospital.

Some of the onlookers were heard to criticize Gene's actions, pointing out that they had been told a patient should never be moved until a doctor moves him.

What those onlookers probably didn't know was that for the past two years, Gene has been a medical corpsman in the navy hospitals

MAY GET STOP SIGNS FOR CRESCENT AND MOODY

When the people living near a corner have to keep first aid equipment handy so they will have it to administer to the cuts and gashes suffered by motorists at regular periods on that corner—it is time something should be done.

Such is the situation at the corner of Crescent and Moody. No stop signs there have resulted in many crashes over the past few years—many of them very serious. Quite a bloody reputation is being gained there.

One resident, whose phone is nearest and who is kept busy calling the ambulance, wished to have an ambulance come out recently to take his wife to the hospital to have a baby.

The puzzled ambulance attendant at the other end of the line said, "I'm not just sure where you live—how close to that corner where they have all the accidents is it?"

The ENTERPRISE received a letter complaining about it this week.

The editor of this paper, representing the paper and the Chamber of commerce, contacted Ralph McFadden, county supervisor for this district Tuesday, and the county traffic committee Wednesday asking for stop signs at that corner.

He was told the matter would be taken up at a meeting of the committee October 8.

Let's hope for two things—first, that the committee approves the installation of stop signs, and second, that no one is killed before they are put up.

SHORT AT SHORTS—CAUSES SHORT FIRE

A short fire was shortly put out at the Short home shortly after noon Monday.

It all started with a short in the refrigerator motor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Short, 5641 Lincoln.

Mrs. Short discovered the fire and her son, Jonathan immediately went to call the fire department.

In the meantime, the quick thinking of Mrs. Short and Mrs. Jack DePolter, a neighbor, resulted in dousing the fire with sand before the firemen arrived. Except for the motor, there were no other damages.

Billy Jim Noe Is Injured

Billy Jim Noe, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Noe, was injured last week when he was involved in a collision on his bike with a car driven by Mrs. Alice Cardoza, 7662 Moody street. The mishap occurred at the corner of Moody and Grace streets.

Billy Jim was taken immediately to Artesia hospital where minor wounds were patched up.

NEXT FRIDAY IS CYPRESS FAIR DAY FOR SCHOOL KIDS

Miss Dickerson of the Cypress Elementary school wishes to remind parents that next Friday, September 26, is set aside as Cypress Day at the Los Angeles county fair in Pomona. School will be dismissed.

School attendance would be greatly improved, she pointed out, if all parents who could take their children to the fair on that day would do so, eliminating absences on other days.

WHITE GOLD DAY MEETING TONIGHT

There will be a meeting of all club representatives and others interested in White Gold Day tonight at 8 p.m. at the school house, according to Don Caul, chairman.

Better Views Of Cypress

GOOD ADVERTISING FOR CYPRESS was evident when Misses Pat Hicks (left) and Barbara Wallace recently consented to ride in the Los Alamitos Festival parade for the purpose of letting people know about the coming White Gold Day, October 4, in Cypress. According to the driver of the car, the people looked at the girls, then the sign, in that order.

Get Started Girls! Here Are Prizes For White Gold Queen

Three Cypress girls have already signified they are interested in vying for the throne of the White Gold Day Queen and Cypress merchants have offered the following prizes for the winner and runner-up.

Queen's Gifts

Ten dollar gift certificate—Mack-O-Day, Parker fountain pen—Henry's Drug, free permanent—Evie's Beauty shop, and hand-tooled leather coin purse—John's Shoe Repair.

Runner-up's Gifts

Picnic set for four including plates, cups, forks and spoons—Cypress Hardware, five pairs of nylons—Essex Variety, box of personalized stationery—Kroesen's printing.

Still Open for Girls

Any girls of high school age are qualified to enter and can get votes for themselves by selling tickets to the barbecue for White Gold Day October 4. Prospective contestants can get more information at Leona's cafe.

So far, two girls are being sponsored by organizations and the third has two clubs which must have meetings before they can decide on the sponsorship.

Miss Pat Hicks was the first in the race, and the Busy Bee Rebekahs are behind her. The VFW Auxiliary voted Monday night to have Miss Margaret Gravely as their candidate. Miss Barbara Wallace will know who her sponsor is by the end of the week.

The Queen committee will be able to find sponsors for any other girls wishing to enter.

Support Your Candidate

Each ticket to the barbecue sold by the girls or their sponsors will be a vote for them. Choose your 1952 Queen and buy your ticket.

LIFE OF TIRES

Scraping tires against the curb when parking is reported by the National Automobile Club to break down the side walls and lessen the life of the tires.

New Owner Of Gas Station

New management of the Richfield gas station at the corner of Lincoln and Moody was announced this week.

Jim Tolbert, of Placentia, took over the establishment from O. C. Hendershot.

Tolbert gained his experience in the field in stations in Placentia.

He will call the place "Jim's Richfield Service."

The manufactures of the nationally-known "Rod and Reel" camping house trailers are moving their entire operation to Cypress, it was announced this week by the company officials.

They completed purchase this week of the property owned by C. P. Bobbett of the Lincoln Lumber company, 4656 Lincoln avenue. Final approval for the plant was given by the Orange county board of supervisors Tuesday morning.

Name of the company is Macoma Engineering Inc. A fairly new concern, it began business in January and now has a payroll of 30 employees. Louis Lovelady is president of the corporation, James Buell is vice-president, and R. M. Funkhouser is secretary-treasurer.

Moved from Bellflower

The move to Cypress will begin within the next week and will be made slowly so that the trailer manufacture will not have to stop. Equipment must be moved from their present quarters in Bellflower.

C. P. Bobbett, owner of the Lincoln Lumber company, whose building and land Macoma has purchased, has announced no future plans.

Cypress Kids Get Treated Next Week

Cypress youngsters will be the center of attraction September 27 as Cypress Kiwanians do their part for the Kiwanis-sponsored National Kids Day.

Arrangements have been made by the local club to take a bus load of kids to the Los Alamitos naval air base for a tour of the airplanes and equipment. Then at 2:30 p.m. in the Cypress school, there will be a movie featuring several cartoons—all FREE. Skip Goodman volunteered to drive the bus to Los Alamitos.

Buttons on Sale

Local members are selling Kid's Day buttons to Cypress folks to help raise money for the occasion, which is now a nationwide event. Money raised will be used to help Cypress children in need of medical care when they cannot be taken care of by anyone else.

It is emphasized by club officers that the money raised does not go outside the community, and is used only for local children.

The national movement is being headed by Jimmy Fidler, famous newspaper columnist.

KIWANIANS URGE VOTING BY GIVING FREE BUTTONS

Buttons saying, "Let's all VOTE" are the beginning steps of a campaign by local Kiwanians to get a high percentage of Cypress people to the poles in November.

As the time grows nearer, other reminders will be issued such as stickers on envelopes and tags to wear after people have cast their ballots on the day of the election, said Ed Robinson, local voting chairman.

It is expected to have buttons numbering in the thousands out before the campaign is over.

CONSTITUTION DAY

One hundred and sixty-five years ago on September 17, 1787, a document was completed which was then, and is now, the outstanding work of its kind. That document is the Constitution of the United States.

Amazingly enough, the high concept of law and government and the clear statement of that concept set forth in the Constitution came from a group of men whose views were in frequent and bitter conflict. There were times in their deliberations when it seemed that general agreement was hopeless.

But through 165 years of peace and war, prosperity and depression, the Constitution has met the challenge of time and crisis. It has demonstrated that the basic laws of justice and liberty are not outmoded by the years and that no "ism" can compare with the state operation of government by the people.

We must not forget, however, that the Constitution is a living document only insofar as the people of America live it day by day. We must recognize and practice its principle that all men—not almost all men—are created equally.

The Constitution of the United States will continue to stand so long as we, individually and collectively, stand by its ideals.

"INFANT" INDUSTRY

The offspring output in these United States has increased tremendously since 1940—by 50 per cent, no less. Statistics show that whereas 2,360,399 new citizens arrived by stork in that year, the annual "immigration" rate had leaped to 3,548,000 in 1950. It's still going strong.

All these newcomers have had quite a profound effect not only on their parents and the statisticians but on the nation as a whole. For one thing, they've created the need for more schools and homes and hospitals. They've boomed the baby business by pushing up sales of talcum, toys and teething rings, and pabulum, pins and pretty clothes, and buggies, bottles and bathenettes.

These dimpled, diapered darlings are wonderful, but they're not cheap. Stork passenger fares are high and maintenance costs are way up. Years ago when most youngsters were born in the home, an addition to the family usually didn't put too much strain on the budget, but even then there were times when it was necessary to borrow from Aunt Minnie to cover the expense. But things have changed. Now, most youngsters are born in hospitals, and borrowing from relatives is no longer necessary since banks provide personal loans for just such events. Papa gets what he needs to take care of all the bills and then repays the loan over an extended period. But these modern methods have yet to eliminate his nervous pacing of the hospital corridor before and walking the floor at home after. Most fathers, however, survive.

But getting back to the birth rate, if it continues at its present pace the stork may go on a strike—for better working hours, no doubt.

COUNTY COMMENT

By GEORGE E. HART

Law enforcement officials, although usually very honest people, sometimes take something that doesn't belong to them. It is criticism.

They do not always tread a path of roses. They have their irritations and handicaps in attempting to perform their duty, and at times are undeservedly blamed for defeats of justice.

Sometimes they are the only ones who want to enforce the law. Meaning misplaced sympathy on the part of juries.

Or maybe they find their obstacles in the law itself. As one disgusted officer remarked: "A law man can't do anything these days, on account of the law."

Sometimes the law and misplaced sympathy combine to cheat justice or remove from society the protection law is intended to give.

Prospect of a such a combination is foreseen by enforcement officials in the case of young killer who will soon come before an Orange county jury, pleading insanity after having admitted to one of the most brutal sex murders in the county's history. The officials are frankly worried about it.

The menace to justice and society in this case is not that he has already killed a lovely young 15-year old girl during a sex frenzy, but that the chances are nine in ten that, if he is convicted at all, he will be let off with a life sentence and, under state law, will be eligible for parole in 14 years.

By that time, he would be 32, in the prime of his beastly vigor, free to repeat the offense against some other young girl. He would then be approximately the age of Henry Ford McCracken today.

Juries are loath to take the life of an 18-year old. In the courtroom they see only his youth, not the hidden beast, which is carefully concealed. They are likely to think of him as just another boy who had made a mistake, an impression nurtured by his lawyers. And they do not think at all of the lovely young victim, who is out of sight and so out of mind, mostly.

And the jury, of course, will not know about the state law making life termers eligible for parole after serving 14 years. It is not permitted to have that information. Even if the jurors did know it, they probably would consider that the prison parole board never would grant parole in such a case, and by recommending a life sentence they would be permanently removing the menace to society.

Any such assumption is as silly as the things parole boards have done. It certainly would not be the first time that dangerous killers have been turned loose on the public. There is little ground for trusting parole boards implicitly.

Thus we have the combination of a legal loophole and jury sympathy brewing possible tragedy for some little girl now attending kindergarten.

Sometimes it is the law itself, rather than the loopholes in it, that plague those entrusted with its enforcement. The spirit of the law can be defeated by its letter.

Next week, we might take a look at one or two examples, which constitute a real menace to society, especially to that portion of it on wheels.

TO DEFEND OUR FREEDOM

I RISE TO REMARK

By JOHN PHILLIPS

Our trip back by plane turned out to be a little longer than we expected, but even more interesting. As I wrote in the last letter, we expected to have lunch in Paris, then drive to Orly field, where, about three o'clock, the big plane that flies once a week from Frankfurt to Washington would stop to pick up Mrs. Phillips and myself, and any other passengers from France, and the next morning we would be eating breakfast in our Washington apartment. That, I want you to understand, still seems marvellous to me, twenty hours actual flying time from Paris to Washington, with a couple hours stop en route to refuel, and a five hours difference in time.

When your Congressman started to drive a car, the speed limit was usually 20 miles an hour, and there were no commercial planes. The Wright brothers had taken out a patent two years before on an idea which few people thought would really work. I wonder how long it took an earlier John Phillips, about a hundred years ago, to cross from England to America, and what he would think of making the passage in 20 hours.

When we got to the field, we learned that the plane was delayed in Germany, so we sat around and watched planes come in and go out.

to and from all parts of the world, and had supper. We finally took off, on the first leg of the trip, in a C-54, instead of the big C-97, and we were at Lages Field, in the Azores, by daybreak. There we learned that the big plane was finally on its way, so the "VIP's"—as we are now called, even on travel orders—elected to transfer to it. Otherwise we would have had to fly to Washington by way of Newfoundland, and Westover Field in Massachusetts.

We had a wait of about seven hours, which gave us an opportunity to see the little old city where Columbus stopped to restock his ships, on the way to the new world, and the old church where he and his sailors worshipped before they continued this hazardous journey. Speaking of what people would think, I wonder what Columbus would think if he could fly over today in a C-97. It's an old joke, but I still smile when I think of the columnist who said Columbus was like a Washington bureaucrat: when he started, he didn't know where he was going; when he got there, he didn't know where he was, and he made the entire trip on borrowed money.

The islands are small, of volcanic formation, and like so many other areas, every bit of ground is utilized. A little plot, no bigger than the floor of your room, will be planted to a few vegetables. Once I saw what seemed to be just two stalks of corn, growing with some other vegetables in a tiny cultivated plot. Some of the little plots in Europe run up the hill-sides so far that in one valley I saw flat rocks laid on the soil, after cultivating and planting it, to keep it from washing away.

Well, the big plane glided down gracefully, a little before noon, picked us up, and we had a late dinner at the apartment in Washington. The C-97 is one of the two-deck planes, although in this case, the lower deck is used only for baggage and shipments back and forth, and for sleeping accom-

Members of the Frank M. Davis family were saddened by the news Sunday of the death of their son and brother, Bernard Gordon Davis. Employed by the Kenai cannery of Anchorage, Alaska, he fell from a telegraph pole, sustaining head injuries which caused his death, having never regained consciousness after the fall.

Born in Warner, New Hampshire, to Frank M. Davis and Blanche Tandy Davis on March 9, 1913, the deceased later was baptized in the Methodist church where he became a member at Fremont, New Hampshire. The fifth child in a family of eight, his is the first death since their mother died in 1928.

Serving in the navy for ten years, where he achieved the rank of Chief Machinist, he was aboard the U.S.S. Medosa in Pearl Harbor at the time of the attack. After being discharged from the service he took up homestead rights in Alaska.

Survivors besides Mr. and Mrs. Davis are two brothers, Clarence T. of Long Beach and Leslie W. of Cypress, and five sisters. They are Mrs. Evalyn Moore of Covina, Mrs. William Gibbs (Alice) of North Dartmouth, Mass., Mrs. E. K. Gienty (Kathleen) of Laconia, New Hampshire, Mrs. Donald Garber (Ethel) of Englewood, Colorado, and Mrs. Frank Robitschek (Jean) of Lakewood, Colorado.

Clarence Davis left by plane Monday for Anchorage to make arrangements for the funeral. There will be a military burial service on the west coast, in a national cemetery which has not yet been selected.

KNAUSS'S RETURN FROM FLORIDA

Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Knauss and children, Sandy Sue and Bobbie Jean, arrived Monday morning from Lake Worth, Florida, where Knauss has been stationed in the air force.

They stopped at Wichita, Kansas, to stay a while with Knauss's brother, J. K. Knauss, and left at 1:30 a.m. Sunday for Cypress, arriving Monday at 5:30 a.m.

Knauss plans to re-enlist this week, and cannot be sure where he will be stationed, although he hopes for March Field. Mrs. Knauss will live at their house at 7912 Lincoln.

Until their furniture arrives, they will stay with Mrs. Knauss's parents, the Fred Hutchings, at 8941 Holder Road.

LAYETTE ARTICLES WANTED BY P. T. A.

An appeal for layette articles for a needy family was made at the first meeting of the Cypress P.T.A. this week by Miss Elizabeth Dickerson, school superintendent.

The baby is expected next week and the articles will be needed soon. Mrs. Ed Robinson, welfare chairman, has offered the use of her telephone and people having baby clothes to donate are asked to call her number, Anaheim 60621, and a P.T.A. member will pick them up.

Other business at the meeting, which was held in the school library with Mrs. Keith Giles presiding, was discussing plans for the booth to be entered at the annual White Gold Day celebration in Cypress. Plans were also made for first association meeting on Oct. 9 at 7:30 p.m. which will be a reception for the teachers. At this time all new parents in the district are given opportunity to meet the entire faculty. The executive board will be hostesses at the initial meeting.

HOSTESS FOR MRS. NIXON

A Cypress woman, Mrs. Jack DeVries, 5392 La Palma, was one of the assisting hostesses at the reception for Mrs. Patricia Ryan Nixon at Artesia Wednesday.

The affair for the wife of the vice-presidential republican nominee was held at the home of J. N. Albers. Mrs. Nixon used to live in Artesia.

Since 1934, we've been expanding our system to bring telephone service to the Columbia Basin area.

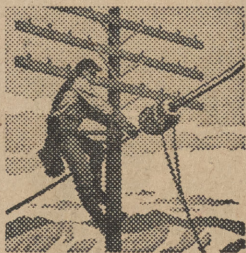

When the Columbia Basin needed telephones

Making a desert blossom meant building a complete, new communications system

Twenty years ago, much of central Washington was sagebrush wasteland. Then came the Columbia Basin project with its plans for a huge dam and thousands of miles of irrigation canals. Right from the beginning, one of the important "tools" needed was telephone service. And we began, even before a yard of earth was moved, to create a new telephone system in the desert. We've invested hundreds of thousands of dollars to build the new facilities in the Columbia Basin...an investment which will mean much to the West and to the nation. For it is helping turn barren land into rich, food-producing farms.

Highway mobile telephones have been helping contractors and engineers build a network of canals over the vast area. In 1934, we put a private line circuit from Coulee Dam to Ephrata. Today the dam itself is webbed with miles and miles of telephone lines...a nerve system over which practically all operations are controlled. And throughout the Basin area we've been building huge amounts of telephone facilities to take care of its amazingly rapid growth. In Ephrata, for instance, three operators handled all calls in 1942. Today, although dial equipment handles local calls, 25 operators are needed. In Moses Lake, there were 66 telephones in 1935. Today there are more than 2000...and the real growth still lies ahead. Eventually, irrigation water will reach more than a million acres. And we'll keep doing our best to see that the people who move there will have telephone service equal to that in other areas we serve here in the West.

And, fast as the West's growth has been, the telephone has grown at an even faster rate...twice as fast in the territory we serve. For at today's prices, the telephone is so economical more people can afford it...so useful, more people want it.

modations for the crew. I had been through one on the ground, but never flown in one. What particularly interested me was that we are experimenting in this plane with the idea of having all the seats face the rear of the plane. Actually, when you are in the air, it is impossible to tell which direction you are flying unless you can see the ground or some other immovable object. The British have been experimenting with the idea of reversed seats, and have had two demonstrations lately of the safety factor. In one forced landing in Germany, when a transport plane was destroyed, not a soldier was lost, and in another, in the Mediterranean, where the ship had to come down in the water, the only people hurt were several children, and one or two passengers who were drowned. The reversed seats prevented the injury which often accompanies the impact of a forced landing. The British papers are now demanding that all airliners and transports have the seats reversed.

Flying back made it the easiest trip we have ever taken. It was a very worthwhile trip, from the standpoint of observation of what is going on and how we are spending money. The best part of it was getting back to the United States.

In case any of those who criticized Gene's actions that day read this, please rest assured that he was perfectly qualified to do what he did, and his quick action may have saved his brother from suffering further complications.

Dad's comment for the week on the political situation. "Republicans don't need to worry about Dorothy Warren chumming around with Borden Stevenson. The Dewey boys did the same thing in 1948 and their father didn't go to the White House."

Here's how oil wells are drilled from shore to a mile or more out under the ocean

HERE'S THE BACKGROUND

The richness of the oil sands at Huntington Beach caused violently intense competition among drilling operations in the 1920's.

When some wells began reaching out from shore into the tidelands, the Attorney General of California filed for an injunction against further drilling because of the legal status of off-shore wells.

In 1938, the State Lands Act was adopted in order to prevent drainage of state oil by private interests. All oil companies were invited to submit bids for the tideland operations on a sliding-scale royalty basis (the more oil, the higher the royalty to the state), and the Southwest Exploration Company emerged as the successful bidder.

The problems were many, as the science of controlled directional drilling was in its infancy. Techniques and equipment developed in this operation have attracted world-wide interest, not only in the oil industry but among the millions of people who drive by the location every year.

HOW A WELL IS SLANTED

Initially, a tideland well is drilled straight down for approximately 100 feet. To deflect the hole gradually from vertical and out toward the ocean, a wedge-like device, called a whipstock, is used. When placed in the desired position on the landside of the hole, it forces the bit into a new drilling direction, toward the ocean. After the new direction is started, the amount or degree of the bend can be increased or decreased by varying the weights and rotational speeds to the bit. The angle may be as much as 75° deviation from vertical.

During the drilling, a photographic instrument is placed in the bottom of the hole to record the direction and angle of the well at that point. The picture taken shows a compass reading (showing direction) and a ball or plumb bob position (showing the deviation from vertical).

EACH WELL IS SCIENTIFICALLY PLOTTED

These readings are used to plot the exact location of each well all the way down. Accuracy is all-important as the tidelands have become a maze of bore holes, with steel casing reaching far out under the ocean.

At the start, the steel casing from one well is just a few feet away from another, but when one is completed, it is hundreds of feet away from the well next to it.

A well that is vertically 4500 feet below the surface of the ocean may have a drilled depth of 8000 feet from its point of origin on the shore.

After the well has been drilled to its destination above the oil sand, heavy pipe called casing is run all the way down to the bottom, fluid cement is pumped down through the casing and up all around it on the outside. This is done to make sure no water or outside elements can get into the oil sands, as this would do serious harm.

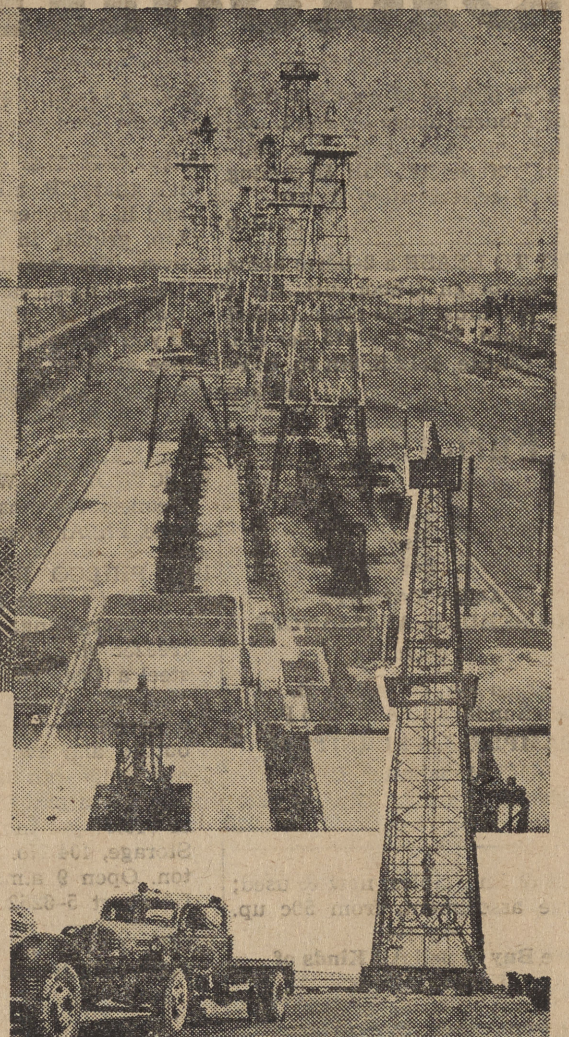

THE FINAL STEP

A hole is drilled through the cement inside the casing and on to the bottom of the oil sand. A smaller pipe, with perforations, is then run opposite the oil sands to protect the bore hole and to permit oil to enter the well.

Pumps lift the oil to surface installations on high, dry ground, far back from the shoreline. Meanwhile, on the beach, bathers and picnic parties continue to enjoy the surf and sand, entirely oblivious to the wells far below them.

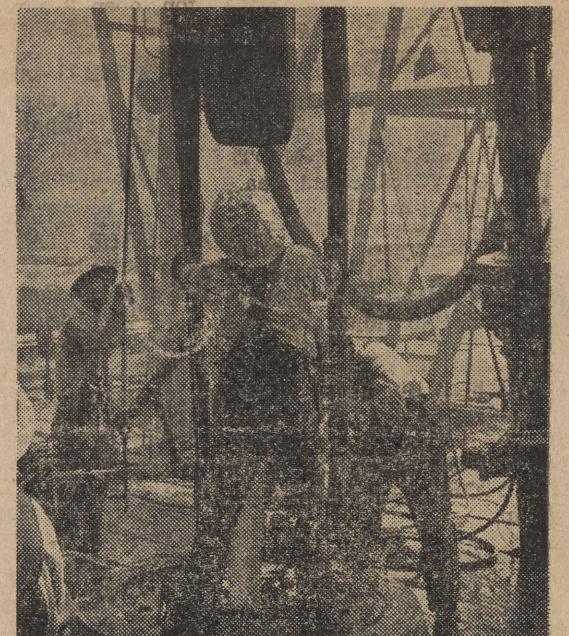

FREE FOLDER

Under a beautiful bathing beach are more than 300 wells pumping oil from far out under the ocean. Royalties from these wells have provided money for beach improvements, recreational purposes, veterans' welfare, and the general fund. Also millions of dollars have been paid in county and municipal taxes, plus millions more in state and Federal taxes. If you would like a colorful, illustrated folder showing how these wells are drilled and operated without marring the beach facilities, we will be glad to supply you, FREE of course.

(BELOW) Preparatory to pulling the drill pipe from the hole, the large drilling hook (top center) is lowered under the watchful eyes of the driller (lower left) to hook onto the drill pipe in the hole (visible between the legs of the man in center foreground).

Oil Royalties Provide Funds for Public Benefit

Under California law, land within the three-mile belt is leased for oil development only in cases where it is necessary to do so in order to prevent oil from being drained by wells on privately owned adjacent uplands. Leases are made to the highest qualified bidder under lease requirements which pay the State a very high royalty—more than twice as high as the 12½% required under Federal leases. The money obtained by California from these leases is earmarked for Veterans' Welfare, beach improvement, parks, recreation, and the general fund.
